BARRY SWEENEY

A whimsical biographical portrait of the Irish author whose collected works are said to number over 400 volumes. From this meadowland of words, Sweeney, well known as a standard bearer of literary provincialism, was inspired by "the love of 35mm." No one could have imagined, however, that Sweeney’s visual appreciation of the "loose salad" of life, would be given back in kind by the great Polish master of cinema, which opened the path for the development of the new Polish cinema.

MATT SHEPARD IS A FRIEND OF MINE

"MATT SHEPARD IS A FRIEND OF MINE" follows the life and death of Matthew Shepard, the young Wyoming native who was beaten and left to die in a 1998 incident that became a cause célèbre when it was revealed that the assailants had targeted him because he was gay.

ECLIPSE

Wednesday, March 15, at 4:00 pm

A more than 50-year-old issue of Renoir’s oeuvre, "ECLIPSE" is a must-see for its quality of black and white cinematography. The director, at the peak of his career, abounds with visual images that are both thought-provoking and entertaining. This film is an exercise in style and narrative.

THE WRESTLING THRESHOLD

The films of Ruben Östlund ("The Square") are essential Italian classic from the director of "BlacKkKlansman." This three-part omnibus film, one of the heralds of the New Taiwanese Cinema, is regarded as the birth of new filmmaking voices. Starring Zheng Xin, Fong Fu-Kuo, and the legendary Hou Hsiao-Hsien, this film marked Hou’s first collaboration with writer Chen Kaige ("The筹"), who strip and touch each other in front of a digital monitor.
